Global Rehoming Appeal for the Canidrome Greyhounds

Dear Friends,

As many of you may be aware, in a few months' time the infamous Canidrome of Macau will be closing its doors forever. Hundreds upon hundreds of greyhounds have died there over the years without hope, but thanks to an amazing international campaign this hellhole will soon be ceasing to function.

This is a wonderful result, but we must not forget that the surviving dogs need a home: we will not be satisfied until every last one of them is safe.

Many of us have worked hard for years to close the Canidrome, supporting Anima - Society for the Protection of Animals (Macau), and we now urgently need the committed support of animal rescues and welfare groups from around the world.

We are appealing not only to those involved specifically in greyhound rescue, but also to all breeds dog rescues and animal protection and rehoming groups in general.

We ask all of you to share with us a wide ranging adoption plan for these dogs: around 650 dogs currently in Macau need to be brought to safety, obviously in full accordance with local and international regulations relating to the movement and transportation of dogs.

This is no small task, but if many people join in to help it can be done.

The Macau greyhounds are just one step away from safety and freedom, but in order to happen, this step requires a special and concrete commitment on the part of everyone who loves animals.

Those wishing to help from anywhere in the world where good animal welfare regulations are in force, please contact directly Albano Martins, the President of Anima - Society for the Protection of Animals (Macau) at: albano@animamacau.org.

Many thanks for your attention on this important issue.
